SEVERE FIGHTING IN WESTERN BATTLE.

(Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.)

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 19.—Reports from the battlefield say that a terrible fight took place yesterday at Ypres, where the Germans renewed their attempts to break through the line.

Fresh Germans took the place of the Prussian Guard, which failed in the first attack with such heavy loss.

The attackers in this engagement met with the same success as did the Guard, taking the first line of trenches and then being compelled to retire under the concerted shell and rifle fire of the entrenched troops of the Allies.

ALLIES AND GERMANS
SUFFER AWFUL LOSSES.

The German advance was preceded by an artillery duel of great intensity, and the infantry advanced under cover of the artillery fire, taking the outer line of trenches.

The Allies lost heavily in this fighting, the troops remaining in the trenches and resisting every step of the German advance.

The enemy attacked in great force and in gallant and determined manner, taking the trenches in spite of great losses.

The fire of the masked batteries and all the infantry positions was then concentrated upon the enemy and they were literally blown out of the captured trenches.

Their losses were enormous. Few of those who reached the trenches got away, and the supports, after losing heavily, were compelled to give up the attempt.

The engagement ended in another exchange of artillery fire.

There is a rumor current that the Germans will make another attempt to break through the line at La Bassée.

Paris reports officially that cannonading on the north front continued last night, and that the Germans had blown up the west part of Chavincourt in the region of St. Mihiel, on the Meuse river.

PETROGRAD, Russia, Nov. 19.—

News of the bombardment of the Russian port of Libau by a German squadron and of the Turkish port of Trebizond by a Russian fleet, both bombardments taking place on Tuesday, was given out officially yesterday.

Libau, which is a port on the Baltic, north of East Prussia, was subjected for some hours to the fire from two cruisers and ten torpedo boats, the shells falling into the harbor and city generally. The damage done was not considerable, although several buildings were wrecked and some of the landing places demolished.

RUSSIA'S FLEET
SHELLS TREBIZOND.

While this bombardment was taking place the Russian Black Sea fleet was pouring a shower of shells into the Turkish city of Trebizond, an important port of 45,000 people, situated on the southern shore of the Black Sea, near the Transcaucasian line. No report of the damage inflicted has been received.

The Austrians have also defeated the Montenegrins in a three-days' battle near Fribourg.

Vienna advices state that the Servians are concentrating into three divisions south of Belgrade.

TSINGTAU WAS HELPLESS.

PEKING, China, Nov. 19.—Details which have reached here of the capture of Tsingtau indicate that the city was practically incapable of further defense when it surrendered to the 17,000 Japanese and 15,000 British that made up the attacking force. The Germans were in the last trenches and numbered in all only 3800.

The German loss in the fighting was 170 men killed and more than 500 wounded.

The conduct of the Japanese after the surrender is admitted to have been most considerate.
